NASPI Novel Applications for Synchronized Power Instrumentation
A DOE-EPRI Joint Initiative

NASPI Partnership Opportunity

The Novel Applications for Synchronized Power Instrumentation (NASPI) work group is a collaborative effort between the U.S. Department of Energy and the Electric Power Research Institute (EPRI). NASPI welcomes and appreciates the support of the synchronized measurement community at our Work Group meetings. NASPI invites you to partner with us at our upcoming meeting. NASPI partnerships

- foster an environment that allows collaboration among the participants
- provide valuable networking opportunities
- help reduce costs for our attendees
- increase product visibility
- provide an opportunity to learn about the needs of the synchronized measurement community.

NASPI partners will be acknowledged throughout the meeting based on their participation level. Currently we are offering two partnership levels: Silver and Gold. Each level will include one table, two chairs, Wi-Fi, and power during the NASPI reception. The NASPI reception provides an opportunity for partners to display exhibits, brochures, and other promotional items they wish to share with the synchronized measurement community. The NASPI Work Group meetings have, on average, 100 attendees and are held in venues that offer opportunities to display signs and logos readily seen by the NASPI meeting attendees.

The following table summarizes fees, the number of registrations included for individuals to participate in the NASPI Work Group meeting, and signage benefits for each level. NASPI will work with your organization to create the signage that will be displayed. Unless special arrangements are made in advance with NASPI, your promotional material must fit in an 8' x 10' space.
